BROWN KILLING PREMEDITATED

Watkins Procured Hunting License, Bought Gun, And, Taking Deliberate Aim at Fellow Brickyard Worker, Fired Charge of Buckshot Into His Body—Had Had Several Arguments Lately.

If George Watkins is arrested for the murder of William Brown at Malden-on-Hudson on Tuesday, it will be because someone recognizes him from his nickname of "Hog Head," which was given to him by his fellow employees as being most expressive of his facial and head characteristics, for both his face and shape of his head are said to resemble those of a hog.

Watkins is 35 years old, stands 5 feet and 11 inches in height, and although said by his companions to look ill, he weighs 185 pounds. His complexion was so black as to excite comment from his fellow negroes from Virginia, who describe him as a "black man."

That Watkins contemplated the murder of Brown is indicated by the fact that an hour before he shot Brown, he had applied for a hunting license at the town clerk's office of the town of Saugerties, and upon the license being issued to him, he went next door, to the store of Henry Ohley, Jr., where he bought a single-barrel shot-gun, with which one hour later he murdered Brown.

The murder was committed in the presence of at least twenty other negroes, and Watkins announced his intention by telling his victim, "hold up your hands! Your time has come to die!" Then after taking deliberate aim at the helpless Brown, Watkins fired the shot which resulted in the negroe's death; walked several paces, broke his gun in order to throw out the empty shell, re-loaded and after warning the others not to follow him, walked to the end of the Staples Brick shed, ran up the hill until he came to the dense underbrush which lines the shore of the Hudson river at that point, and disappeared. The time that elapsed between his unexpected appearance where the negroes were at work loading a barge with brick and his final disappearance in the underbrush could not have been more than five minutes, probably it was not more than two or three minutes.

Watkins is a Virginia negro, and is 35 years old, the same age as his victim. At different times for the past eighteen years he has worked at the Staples yard. Eleven years ago he married a young colored woman whose family lived at that time and still live at Coxsackie. They worked at various places in the north, sometimes going south for the winter, but seven years ago they lived at Coxsackie, where Watkins was employed at the Staples yard during the summer. Brown, who was also a southern negro, also worked at the Staples yard that season.

Both families occupied the same house at Malden, but on different floors, the Watkins family, consisting of Watkins and his wife, living on the upper floor, and Brown and his wife, living on the lower floor. When they had worked at the Staples yard in past years it had been their custom to come to Malden early in June and remain until December. They came to Malden about a month ago.

Several times lately the other negroes employed on the Staples yard had overheard the two men having arguments, most of which seemed to be good natured and accompanied by much raillery. On Monday there was quite a loud argument lasting several minutes between the two men, but it was not sufficiently strong to stop the other men, who merely thought it was over a matter that did not amount to anything, and paid no attention to it.

Watkins could have gone to work on Tuesday morning had he so desired, because there was the usual work to be done. Instead, he did not appear at the yard for work, but after the other men reported for work he left the house and started for Saugerties, where he first applied at the town clerk's office for a hunting license. Then he went in the adjoining store and bought a single barrel 12-guage gun and a box of shells after stating that he intended to go hunting. He returned directly to Malden, reaching the yard about 10:30 o'clock. He made his way through the racks where brick are piled to dry and emerged under the shed at a pile of brick which had been burned and which was then being taken down and removed to a barge tied along the wharf.

When Watkins appeared with his gun, he had the weapon pointed in the direction of Brown, who was engaged in loading a "boat," as the wheelbarrows used for carrying the brick from the yard to the barge are called. He told Brown, "Throw up your hands! Your time has come to die!"

Several negroes protested and told him not to shoot, but their protests were in vain. Watkins pulled the trigger and Brown fell, the charge of buckshot having entered his leg close to the thigh.

Watkins walked several paces away, broke his gun and re-loaded it; warned the others not to follow him; walked backward quickly toward the end of the shed which opens on the road leading down from the state highway and when he reached the road, ran up the steep ascent for about thirty feet until he reached the underbrush, into which he disappeared.

A telephone is located on the hill just above the yard, and a message was sent for Dr. Krom of Saugerties, who responded quickly. Brown had bled profusely from his wound, although a tourniquet had been made between the wound and the thigh, and died within ten minutes after Dr. Krom's arrival. The body was later removed to the undertaking establishment of Burhans & Lasher, where an autopsy was performed during the afternoon by Dr. Krom and Dr. E. E. Norwood of this city.

District Attorney Traver and Assistant District Attorney Brooks arrived at Malden within a short time after the murder and interviewed the witnesses. Under Sheriff Haulenbeck and Jailer Seth Jocelyn, who went to Malden as soon as the murder was reported to the sheriff's office, decided to go to Coxsackie in the hope of overtaking Watkins, who was supposed to have gone in that direction, but they were not successful in finding him there. The State Troopers arrived at Malden about 2:30 o'clock, having made the trip from Albany by motorcycle in a little more than two hours. After a brief investigation, they started on a search for Watkins, whose description was furnished first to the Albany office and thence communicated to various police officials.

No other motive for the murder is known than the argument which took place on Monday. It is understood that in years gone by, Watkins sometimes displayed considerable temper, particularly when he had been drinking, but there is not the slightest intimation even from ardent Prohibitionists that he had had access to any liquor for more than a year, and all evidence is quite to the contrary. His earnings when he worked a full week amounted to between $35 and $40, but like the rest of the men employed on the brickyards, he found it impossible to work steadily week in and week out on account of the intense heat.

Watkins was 5 feet and 11 inches in height, weighed 185 pounds, was intensely black, with face and features that gave him the nick name of "Hog Head," was thin and sickly in appearance, wore brown check trousers, blue cotton shirt, dark green fedora hat and tan shoes with a patch on the toe of one shoe.

LIGHTNING KILLS CLEMENT KEATOR

Well Known Kingston Traveling Man Died Instantly Under Tree in Catskill in Tuesday's Storm—Companion Quickly Recovers After Being Knocked Unconscious.

During the electrical storm Tuesday afternoon, Clement Keator of this city, while at Catskill, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. Mr. Keator, who was a traveling salesman for Seamon Brothers, wholesale grocers, New York city, had gone to that village on business and while on his way to the West Shore station to take a train for Kingston, and walking on Railroad avenue with Jacob Conklin of Catskill, a shower came up and they stopped under a maple tree for a moment. The bolt struck both men, knocking them to the ground. Mr. Keator being killed instantly and Mr. Conklin knocked unconscious. The latter was taken to a nearby store and after treatment by a physician recovered and was able to go to his home.

Coroner William Rapp took charge of Mr. Keator's body and a telegram was sent to S. E. Keator, the name of his deceased wife, which was on an identification card, with address 312 Washington avenue, where Mr. Keator resided with his wife before her death about three years ago, the house since being sold by him and he was boarding at the Kingston Hotel, Crown street.

Bartram H. Houghtaling of 247 Clinton avenue, whose wife is a cousin of the late Mrs. Keator, notified Mrs. L. J. Bloom, New York, a niece, of Mr. Keator's death and A. Carr & Sons undertakers, were requested to go to Catskill and bring the remains, which had been placed in care of William Kortz, an undertaker there. They were brought to the funeral parlor of the former last night.

Mr. Keator, who had been a traveling salesman for many years, was well known throughout Greene, Ulster, Sullivan and Delaware counties, and was very popular, being of a genial disposition. A number of years ago he owned trotting horses and could be seen at local horse races and county fairs when trotting events occurred. Mr. Keator was about 73 years of age.

STOCK SLUMPS.

D. and H. May Not Be As Gilt Edged As In Past.

Delaware & Hudson stock, many shares being held by the older families in his city and county, suffered a bad break Tuesday in the stock market, its price dropping nearly four points to 84, the lowest level the stock has sold in the last twenty years. The selling of D. & H. was naturally disturbing to the whole railroad list, but important weakness was confined to this one stock, the 9 per cent dividend on which is not regarded as any too secure. The company has been largely dependent in recent years on profits from its coal properties to cover dividend requirements, but there has been some talk lately to the effect that anthracite earnings were in danger of diminishing because of the exhausion of the easily worked veins. As recently as 1916 Delaware & Hudson sold as high as 156. The high for the stock last year was 116.

AUTO ACCIDENT INQUEST FRIDAY

Witnesses Will Be Examined by Coroner Card at Poughkeepsie as to Deaths of Thomas Houser and Joseph Furmansky—Authorities Seek Owner of Franklin Car.

An inquest into the death of Thomas Houser and Joseph Furmansky, the two young men of this city who were killed in the automobile accident near Staatsburgh Sunday, will be held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the court house at Poughkeepsie.

Coroner John A. Card of Dutchess county spent Monday in this city summoning witnesses to attend the inquest. The hearing Friday will be but a preliminary affair and the outline for future investigation will be mapped out. It is not likely that Anthony DeCicco, driver of the death car, will be able to attend the hearing owing to his critical condition.

Among the witnesses who will be called is a resident of Poughkeepsie who was traveling north on the Hyde Park road and directly behind the DeCicco car. He was passing the ball grounds when the automobile came from the gateway and waited to allow the other car to go ahead.

He stated that he allowed the car containing the ball players to take the lead as they were shouting and singing, and as they were apparently in a hurry he did not attempt to pass them.

He was first to arrive after the accident and saw the men thrown from the car. He said he saw Furmansky catapulted over the fence of the golf grounds and land on his head. He does not know whether Furmansky was riding on the running board, but states he saw several standing on the outside when the car passed him.

This man, whose name Coroner Card refuses to divulge, further states that he saw a Franklin car coming down the road a short distance ahead of where the accident happened, and saw the driver of this car taking up the center of the road, forcing all other cars to the extreme right of the road. He says that when the driver of the car passed him he had to run his machine into the grass along the side of the road to avoid a collision.

He saw the right wheel of the ball players' car catch in the ridge on the side of the road and the rear right hub strike the tree, throwing the front of the car around and causing it to collide with the tree.

Every effort is now being made by the Dutchess county authorities and Coroner Card to locate and arrest the owner or driver of the Franklin car that "hogged" the road. There was some thought at first that DeCicco was at fault, but an investigation made by the authorities, it is said, resulted in exonerating him from all blame.

The Oakland car is still being held by the Dutchess county authorities, and it is said that the speedometer is locked at between 36 and 37 miles per hour. This, it is said, corresponds with the statement of one of the principal witnesses, who says that the car was traveling at about 35 miles per hour when it passed him a short distance from where the accident occurred.

None are able to explain how it was that Houser, who was in the rear seat, was killed while some of the occupants of the front seat who were pinned tightly between the bent seat and the front of the car, escaped with minor injuries.

COOLIDGE AND HARDING MEET

By Telegraph to The Freeman:

Washington, June 30.—The character of the campaign and the part each is to take in it was discussed here today by Senator Harding and Governor Calvin Coolidge, Republican nominee for president and vice president respectively.

It was the first meeting of the two since at Chicago.

The speeches of acceptance to be made by each of them were considered by the nominees today. There is a possibility that after the conference ends today the senator and governor will be joined by National Chairman Will Hays, and Senator Daugherty, who are directing the organization of the Republican campaign.

Governor Coolidge arrived late last night. This morning he breakfasted with Senator Harding at the latter's home. The movie men caught them there and they posed for the picture features of the campaign. They came together to Senator Harding's office in the senate office building, where the conferences were held.

Before Harding and Coolidge reached the senate office building a delegation of suffragists, led by Mrs Marie M. Forrest of Scituate, Mass., a member of the national advisory committee of the women's party, were on hand to interrogate Governor Coolidge and to urge him to use his influence with the governor of Vermont to urge him to hasten action in calling a special session of the legislature to act upon the suffrage amendment.

A few days ago at his home at Northampton, Mass., Governor Coolidge dictated a speech on "law and order." These speeches are to be sent out by the Republican national committee and will be a feature of many Republican political rallies and patriotic celebrations on July 4th. Plans have been made to have the records at Marion, Ohio, for the return of Senator Harding and the joint fourth and Marion homecoming day on July 5th.

Final arrangements have been completed for the transfer next Saturday of Senator Harding's personal staff, office force, files and supplies to Marion, Ohio.

FARMERS RAN BILLIONS BEHIND

Owing to Low Prices Received Last Year, Says National Council—Will Not Produce Largely Until Business Shows Profit.

By Telegraph to The Freeman:

Washington, June 30.—The farmers of the country ran behind $6,481,787,000 last year, according to figures made public today by the Farmers' National Council, after an investigation of several months.

The investigation proves that charges of profiteering by farmers are absolutely without justification, says the statement issued by the council, and shows "the farmers' interest as labor is about three times as great as his interest as a capitalist."

"Few farmers," the statement continues, "and fewer city people appreciate that agriculture is primarily labor and underpaid labor at that.

"Farmers who manage farms are fully entitled to as big a money return as managers of other business enterprises, but they often receive less wages than many unskilled workers who themselves are not getting a living wage, and we should count their services worth at least $2,000 a year."

There will be no such payment for seasonal and hired labor this year as last, the council declares, "for the obvious reason that farmers were discouraged with the low prices received for their products and have not sown such large acreages. Farmers can always feed themselves, but their business much show a profit before they feed other people."

"The return of the railroads to private control with the increase in rates and consequent increase in prices will place an increased burden of at least two billion upon the farmers," the council declares.

According to the figures gathered by the council, the total cost and expenditures on all the farms of the country last year were $31,463,787,000. The total value of crops was $16,025,000,000 and the total value of animals and animal products was $8,957,000,000.

It is estimated that the total amount spent by the farmers for labor was $5,000,000,000 and the total for moving products $600,000,000.

77 DOGS FOUND NOT LICENSED

The police department has just completed the dog census of the city, and finds that the canine population numbers 952 of every degree of breed, color and disposition. The dog census developed the fact that there are 77 dogs not licensed in Kingston. During the early part of the year 875 dogs were licensed with City Clerk Doremus. The owners of the 77 unlicensed dogs will be reported to the state department, and each one will be notified to appear in police court where a fine of $10 will be imposed in addition to the owner taking out the dog license. Of this $770 to be so collected part goes to the state and part to the city.

WELFARE CLINIC HERE THURSDAYS

Child welfare clinics will be held at the city hall each Thursday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock during the summer months. The clinics are under the auspices of the board of health and will be in charge of Dr. Ebba Dederer and Miss Florence McEntee, the child welfare nurse.

Dr. Dederer has had exceptional opportunities in child welfare work. From 1908 to 1911 she was in charge of the Pediatric clinic in the Presbyterian Hospital in New York, and was the first woman physician to hold regular appointment there. During 1908 and 1909 she also held an appointment in the New York Orthopaedic Hospital clinic for children.

Her experience in that work led to her being appointed physician in charge of the Brooklyn Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children in 1914, which position she held until 1917, when she took up private practice in this city.

During her service with the children's society she gained very valuable experience, especially during the epidemic of infantile paralysis, or anterior poliomyelitis.

NOMINATING SPEECHES START WITH FOUR CANDIDATES TAKEN SERIOUSLY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Auditorium, San Francisco, June 30.—The bands are playing, the pipe organ is piping, the glee clubs are gleeing and the smart looking ladies and gentlemen of the Democratic national convention are setting the stage for the main act of the big quadrennial political movie with no less than seventeen (count 'em) names from which to choose the 1920 party here.

We shall not know the names of the party standard bearers today, except perhaps by inference, for balloting can scarcely be reached before tomorrow and goodness knows how many more hours it will consume, for a dark and deep plot is to be unravelled and the gentlemen who shall figure in the last scene must first leap the mighty chasm of a two thirds majority.

Nominating speeches order of today's business is limited to twenty minutes. Seconding speeches are limited to three or five minutes duration respectivelly.

Allowing twenty minutes each for the customary maniacal horseplay to vent proper enthusiasm, this calendar day in history would require more than fourteen hours between 11 a. m. and 12 midnight to accommodate the performance, and as that can't be done, it looks about like a standard eight hour day with many speeches boiled to the bone and others left out entirely.

While the convention is excitedly milling on the nominating speeches, behind the scenes the sub-committee of the committee on platform and resolutions is dotting the last "i's" and crossing the last "t's" of the momentous statement of party principles and offering the same to the full committee. All of which sounds miraculous, but as a matter of fact there is no evidence that any blood is being spilt in that transaction and the convention proceeds under the general impression that the famous Virginia platform plank, approved by President Wilson, is the model of the key plank concerning league of nations and peace.

Out of the great mystery as to the probable selection of the presidential candidate these facts stand:

1—At the opening of today's session, A. Mitchell Palmer, attorney general, had the most pledged votes, estimated at between 300 and 335, whereas 728 are necessary to a choice.

2—William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, shrinking from the honor as he himself declares and as his friends prove by exhibition of recent letters from him, is preeminently the preferred candidate among the rank and file of delegates. It is said by his boosters here that he can have more than 250 votes on the first ballot. His friends are willing that his opponents should exhaust their strength in the early balloting. There seems no question that McAdoo will accept if the tender is made, but he wants the call to come from the floor of this convention, if at all. However, since his desire to keep out may be, nevertheless, the practical politics of his backwardness is fully appreciated here.

3—James M. Cox, governor of Ohio is the closest actual rival of McAdoo. His boosters are not giving out figures. He may show equally with McAdoo on the first ballot and the tendency will be to grow, but whether he can leap the 728 gap is the question.

4—Thomas Riley Marshall is somewhat stunned today by the rising tide of popular talk about his presidential candidacy, but it is not likely that he will have much more than a native son vote on the first ballot. May be it will grow to sizeable proportions.

Then will come the long list of favorite sons, with an aggregate of some three hundred pledged votes among them. Governor Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey, the wet advocate, appears not to have gone beyond New Jersey's twenty-eight votes in strength. There is a question whether Governor Smith of New York can lay claim to New York's ninety votes as the unit rule may be broken even on the first ballot. John W. Davis of West Virginia, may have a few more than the sixteen votes of his state delegation. Homer S. Cummings will get Connecticut's fourteen votes and may show more strength. Carter Glass gets twenty-four Virginia votes and is in the running a trifle. Senator Gilbert L. Owen, of Oklahoma, has his state's twenty votes as a nest egg. Others with pledged home state delegations are Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, sixteen votes, former Ambassador to Germany Gerard with South Dakota's ten votes and Senator Simmons of South Carolina with 18 votes.

In today's session former Ambassador Gerard will probably be honored by the first nominating speech, as Arkansas will yield to South Dakota when the roll of states is called. It is possible that Alabama may yield to some other state and thus precipitate a surprise. But these candidate racers come up to the wire with the nervousness of thoroughbreds and no one cares to "beat the barrier," though the [illegible] G. Cherry of Sioux Falls is scheduled to nominate Gerard.

Homer Cummings is next scheduled for the tape, John F. Crosby being prepared to voice his meed of praise.

Florida is scheduled to yield to West Virginia and the name of John W. Davis will be sent up on an arrow shot by Stephen G. Jackson. Georgia will yield to Pennsylvania and A. Mitchell Palmer's lot will be cast by John Biglow, of the anthracite town of Hazelton, Pa.

Secretary of Agriculture Meredith's name will be put into the big hopper by Claude R. Porter of Iowa.

When Kansas is called W. W. Rose of Kansas City will, independently of his delegation, present the name of Ambassador Brand Whitlock, according to his own statement. The Kansas delegation is uninstructed but are counted upon as McAdoo's adherents.

Burris Jenkins, the minister-editor of Kansas City, Mo., at this point is prepared to and says he will propose the name of William Gibbs McAdoo.

Following the naming of Senator Hitchcock by former Governor Schallenberger of Nebraska and Governor Edwards by Charles F. X. O'Brien of Jersey City, and the presentation of Governor Al. Smith by some unknown, James M. Cox's big balloon will be sent into the air by Judge James Johnson of Columbus, Ohio.

MAIN PLANKS OF DEM. PLATFORM

Unqualified Endorsement of League With Article X Intact—Bone Dry Plank With Slap At Espionage—Collective Bargaining For Labor—Irish Question To League.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

San Francisco, June 30.—Herewith is presented an authoritative forecast of essential planks in the tentative Democratic platform which probably will be finally adopted within the next 24 hours:

Foreign Relations.

As previously stated in these dispatches the famous Virginia platform which unqualifiedly endorses President Wilson's league of nations, is the model of the foreign relations plank, the changes being for the purpose of making the document more simple and comprehensive, the altered phraseology in no way modifying the meaning of the original paper. Article ten stands intact. The plank purports to declare that nothing in the covenant may be construed to take from the United States the control of her own troops that no international questions of interest to the United States alone shall be surrendered to the league of nations; that the Monroe Doctrine shall not in any way be affected by the covenant. Unless change is made after the sub-committe has submitted the platform to the committee on resolutions and platform the plank will stand exactly as President Wilson, as represented here by Senator Carter Glass, would have it. There was much time spent by the sub-committee in a discussion of shades of meaning of words and phrases, but there was no serious effort to disturb the essential meaning.

Prohibition.

The indications are that the prohibition plank will be bone dry. The prevailing thought in the sub-committee at an early hour this morning, at least, was that the liquor question was a dead issue to a majority of people who have accepted the dry situation and do not desire a return to liquor selling, but there was sentiment to write into the platform a statement in reference to personal liberty rights, with condemnation of legalized espionage by prohibition agents, forcible entry of homes for evidence of liquor violations, without however, permitting the language to suggest that the government should relax and permit an era of winking at commercial liquor traffic. This matter is still undecided.

Labor.

The labor planks are construed by members of the committee as "highly progressive." A strong effort was made to recognise the right of labor to be "represented in collective bargaining" by "representatives of their own choosing." The last four words it will be remembered, were the rock on which the president's industrial relations committee foundered last October at Washington. The demands of labor for restricted emigration were not favored, but rather the open door was to be proclaimed to workmen of the world. The plank suggests that emigrants must be encouraged to take on American standards of living and customs and that segregation of foreigners should be deprecated. Child labor is inveighed against. The program of the women's party having to do with such as old age pensions, non-employment insurance, maternity benefits, improvement of conditions among workers has been met favorably, it is said. The use of the injunction in labor disputes was the subject of long discussion, but condemnation of it may be omitted.

Ireland.

An effort has been made to put into the platform an Irish plank

Friday proved to be one of those ideal days in June and all those who attended the festival after partaking of the excellent short cake as well as the other dainties, could justly say it was the end of a perfect day, the supper serving as a fitting close. The menu consisted of baked beans, cottage cheese, deviled eggs, radishes, lettuce sandwiches, coffee, strawberry short cake and ice cream, all of which were served for the small sum of 45 cents. There were a large number present and many who did not attend the supper came in later to enjoy the short cake and ice cream. Parties from Stone Ridge, Hurley and Glasco were present. The proceeds from the supper amounted to about $35 after all expenses were deducted. The Ladies' Aid should be given credit for their success in carrying out of this social event.

After the supper there were moving pictures. The Good Samaritan was presented and Prof. Burton L. Rockwood gave an address on the film. His address was very interesting and instructive. Besides The Good Samaritan there was The Boy's Life and Screen Review. No admission was charged but a silver collection was taken after the service.

Some real facts about
COFFEE

Time has dispelled many old illusions. Coal was once condemned as "injurious" and burned openly in the market place as a "public nuisance."

For ten centuries the nations of the earth have enjoyed the benefits of coffee. Yet in this enlightened day coffee is sometimes declared "injurious"—another form of superstition.

Coffee plays its part in the homes of the millions—three times a day every day. Coffee helped to win the war. It fed suffering Belgium. In Holland coffee is always ready to serve—and its people are healthy.

You will find in REYNOLD'S RELIANCE a coffee of unsurpassed flavor and aroma. And our scientific process of roasting and grinding makes RELIANCE as healthful as it is delicious.

Remember to ask for RELIANCE. It is always fresh at your grocers—guaranteed to please or your money back. Wm. T. Reynolds & Company, Inc., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

HATTIE HORVERS AND EMMICK WED

Young Folks Who Disappeared From Kingston Earlier in Year Working in Hospital in New York.—She Expects to Become a Nurse and He a Doctor.

Willis Emmick of Lindsey avenue, and Miss Hattie Horvers of German street, were married in New York city on June 1, according to a letter received today by The Freeman, but the mother of bride when seen later in the day stated that when her daughter was up shortly after Decoration Day she said nothing about her marriage.

It will be remembered that Miss Horvers, who her mother says is 16 years old, and who appears at least two years older, disappeared from her home earlier in the year. She had left home early that morning stating she was going to work in the pants factory on Spring street, and that was the last her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Horvers, heard from her until over two weeks had elapsed when she wrote that she was working in a New York hospital and would be home for Decoration Day.

The same day that Miss Horvers disappeared from home Willis Emmick left Kingston, and the parents of the missing girl believed that the two young folks had gone away together.

The letter received this morning states that they are employed in the Manhattan Hospital in New York, where she is training to be a nurse, and her husband to be a hospital doctor. They are both getting along well the letter states, and closes with the statement that they were married the first day of June.

Mrs. Horvers stated this morning when seen by a Freeman reporter that it was news to her that her daughter was married but she also stated that she had been told that they were to be married in October.

HOW TO SET A HEN PROPERLY

Nest Should Be in Some Quiet Place Where She Won't Be Disturbed—Handle Carefully.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The first sign of a hen being broody (wanting to set) is that she stays longer on the nest when laying, and on being approached will quite likely remain and make a clucking noise, ruffle her feathers and peck at the intruder. When it is noted that a hen sets on a nest from two to three nights in succession and that the feathers are disappearing from her breast which should feel hot to the hand, she is ready to be transferred for setting to a nest which has previously been prepared. The normal temperature of a hen is from 106 to 107 degrees F., which varies slightly during incubation.

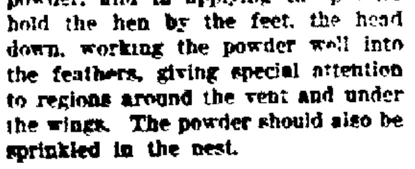
Well-Selected Flock of Young Hens of Uniform Size.

The nest should be in some quiet, out-of-the-way place, where the sitting hen will not be disturbed. Move her from the regular laying nest at night and handle her carefully in doing so. Put a china egg or two in the nest where she is to sit and place a board over the opening so that she cannot get off.

Toward the evening of the second day quietly go in where she is sitting, leave some feed and water, remove the board from the front or top of the nest, and let the hen come off when she is ready. Should she return to the nest after feeding remove the china egg or eggs and put under those that are to be incubated. If the nests are slightly darkened the hens are less likely to become restless.

At hatching time they should be confined and not be disturbed until the hatch is completed, unless they become restless, when it may be best to remove the chicks that are hatched first. In cool weather it is best not to put more than ten eggs under a hen, while later in the spring one can put twelve to fifteen, according to the size of the hen.

Dust the hen thoroughly with insect powder, and in applying the powder hold the hen by the feet, the head down, working the powder well into the feathers, giving special attention to regions around the vent and under the wings. The powder should also be sprinkled in the nest.



Guineas, like geese and pigeons, pair when the number of males and females is equal.

* * *

The turkey does not fully mature until two years old, and is at its best at three years.

* * *

Sometimes the old hens of the heavy breeds will not need fattening, as they have a tendency to take on fat with age.

* * *

The poultry house should have no draughts; it should be clean and kept clean and no damp floors should be tolerated.

* * *

A fowl consumes about three ounces of mash in the morning, two ounces of grain at noon, and four ounces of grain at the evening feed.

Proper equipment in the poultry house often is the deciding factor in successful poultry keeping and should be given due consideration.

* * *

Hens lay best in damp weather, even during winter. It will be noticed that they are more prolific during showery spells than they are when it is dry. The theory is that moisture produces expansion and growth, whereas dry, cold or dry warmth contracts.

Philosophy of a Cipher.

Consider the cipher. It amounts to nothing in itself, but when put at work with others behind a good strong figure it adds wonderfully to the value of the group. But if a cipher puts on airs and gets out in front of the procession, it becomes valueless again. Men might take a lesson and learn that their value lasts only as long as they stay on the job.

Each Has Special Gift.

Degrees infinite of lustre there must always be, but the weakest among us has a gift, however seemingly trivial, which is peculiar to him, and which, worthily used, will be a gift, also, to his race forever.—John Ruskin.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 30, 1920.

Every so often some one man with two or three cronies who are not satisfied with things done in an orderly manner, and usually because they were not permitted to dictate, organize, or try to organize, a third party movement. Launching opposition to the recognized forces is by no means new, in fact the plan has been somewhat popular recently even though it has not been successful. Thus when talk of a third party is heard again it does not startle anybody, the truth being that nobody pays any attention to it whatever.

SMITH AND THE FARMERS.

Farmers of the state, in all their sincerity and for reasons clearly stated, appealed to Governor Smith to sign the bill repealing the "daylight saving" law. They told him the benefits it would be to them and they informed him that were the measure repealed it would mean increased production, which would mean more to the people. Not one stone did they leave unturned to make the governor see what assistance he could give, but, nevertheless, he gave them a deaf ear.

The farmers went back home, not ugly perhaps, but hurt, and it was only natural when they got the opportunity that they would prove it in terms that could not be misunderstood. This they did by paying practically no attention whatever to his suggestion that a committee be appointed to take up the shortage of labor problem. As far as the governor's interest was concerned in this all-important subject they looked upon it as being of no value insomuch as by his action in refusing to sign the repeal bill he had ignored their efforts toward increasing production.

The result was a meeting with but a handful there and it did not amount to anything as far as results might be considered. One man paid his respects to one of the governor's expert writers on farming, saying that the writer instead of helping the farmer or farming communities had injured them by inaccurate statements, statements that were foolish in the eyes of the practical and intelligent farmer. The meagre attendance, however, proved that the farmer had become convinced that a Tammany governor was hardly the type of citizen for a farmer to consult if any progress were to be expected on the farm.

THE INDEMNITY.

It appears to be settled that Germany is to pay thirty billion dollars of indemnity, and it is well for all concerned for the amount to be definitely fixed and uncertainty ended. Compared with previous indemnities exacted and paid, it is a huge sum, but the war which Germany wilfully precipitated was also unparalleled both in its horrors and its incalculable destruction. Germany must pay the piper; she can not hope to escape the consequences of her misdeeds, of the causeless war which she ruthlessly waged with what may be accurately termed the last word in scientific savagery. The only question is as to whether a government already burdened with debt to its own people can pay such an indemnity. In the opinion of observers she can, and such an opinion is reasonable, for the thirty billions are to be paid in annual installments covering many years. Installments of three quarters of a billion of dollars a year can not be regarded as crushing when we consider the enormous bond sales successfully put through at frequent intervals during the war by this and other countries which Germany's misdoings dragged into the war.

In the end Germany may find that this heavy indemnity partook of the nature of a blessing in disguise. It will if it brings Germans to their senses and drives them to a man into the necessary business of hard work and careful saving, while the rest of the world persists in the present madness of industrial slacking and consequent underproduction. If the Germans go to work and the other peoples persist in loafing, Germany will come out on top industrially in spite of her debts.

YE EDITOR TELLS OF HIS RAMBLES

Among the "Bluenoses," Whose Lieutenant Governor Kisses All Lady Tourists—Trouble With the National Anthems—Leisurely Business Men.

It takes a power of money to keep truth, or what we think is truth, on the map. Look at the vast sums we pay for schools, newspapers, books and churches. But once start error on its way and it is immortal. Just as we call our aborigines Indians although they never saw India and just as the whole world calls us Yankees although the genuine Yankee is a relatively scarce article, so they call the Nova Scotians Bluenoses because some ignoramus once declared that their climate was so severe that their noses were discolored most of the time. As a matter of fact, the Nova Scotian winter is less severe than our own. The province is about two-thirds the size of Maine and is populated just about as densely. But its people are richer and they will be richer still, now that the C. G. R. and the Dominion Atlantic Railway, which connects with it are co-operating to develop the province. On our trip of 252 miles from Yarmouth to Halifax we observed that the sportsman can now leave a palatial train and within a few minutes begin catching big salmon or hunting moose and wolves. Hotels are springing up just where they are needed. It is a paradise for sportsmen who are not partial to the dirt and discomfort of a rough camp, but there is also plenty of room for those who like the hard life. The scenery is a curious mixture of well kept farms and wild tracts. The certainty of profits invites men to engage in fishing, agriculture or catering to summer pleasure seekers, according to their preference. Poverty is practically unknown.

A Kissing Lieutenant Governor.

We spent a whole day and evening in Halifax. It is a city of 70,000 people and has a wonderful harbor. Dartmouth is a separate city reached by ferry or by auto drive around the harbor and the two towns joined forces in welcoming us. There was riding on land and water, "tea" at the country club, a dance and an opera. The main feature was a lunch and reception at the "Green Lantern," arranged by the Daughters of the Empire, an organization similar to our D. A. R., and some other ladies' societies. There were speeches by the two mayors, by the premier, and by the officers of our party. Also by the secretaries of the two chambers of commerce. The big feature of the occasion was the presence of Lieutenant Governor Grant (pronounced Leftenant and Grahnt). He is a most lovable elderly gentleman, and as an orator he is so poor that he is more than good, if you understand what I mean, and we could listen to him all day without growing restless. He made a hit with us all right and we coaxed him to go with us a way on our trip. When he finally left he exercised his deputy-royal privilege of kissing all the ladies goodbye. One of them he happened to meet in the vestibule during his osculatory tour and he led her to believe that she was "the only one." Later, when she boasted of the distinction conferred on her the other ladies had fun with her.

Anything smacking (pardon the pun) of royalty or nobility sets the majority of our democratic Americans a-flutter—especially the ladies. Soon after a real countess paid our train a visit and proceeded to tell our girls the story of her life, which involved being raised to her present eminence through a love match with a nobleman who took her away from a telephone switchboard. She also put the sage of Waukegan at his ease by addressing him as "Bill," and she would have kissed him if encouraged properly, but Bill is bashful. The excitement she started in our party last several days.

"His Worship, the Mayor."

I was charmed by the Canadian custom of always referring to the chief municipal officer as "His Worship, the Mayor." It makes you feel that you are up against the real thing. Besides, it makes it easier to get a good man to take the job without salary. I hereby propose that Mayor Canfield hereafter be referred to as "His Worship." We should not be behind the Canadians in delicate recognition of merit and public service.

The speeches made at the "Green Lantern" were typical of those at similar functions all through our trip. The spokesmen of the welcomers and the welcomed emphasized the century-long friendship between our countries, evidenced by the fact that there is no fortress or war ship anywhere on our thousands of miles of boundary. There was a vast amount of blood-is-thicker-than-water talk. All hands sang "The Star Spangled Banner," "America" and "God Save the King." The funny part of it was that the Canadians have three or four versions of their national anthem and never seem to get together on it, while no two of our party had identical understandings of the first-named selection. Most of the Canadian speakers referred feelingly to unnamed individuals who, they alleged, were working hard to break up our international friendship. This puzzled me for awhile, until I came to understand that reference was made to the demagogues who are trying to commit the United States to the cause of the Sinn Feiners in order to capture the "Irish-American" vote. Canadians have no sympathy at all for the Irish and regard them as fools. While not disposed to accept any dictation from Great Britain regarding the domestic affairs of the Dominion, they are with the mother country to a man when it comes to maintaining the solidarity of the Empire. They are unable to comprehend any difference between the cause of Ireland and the cause of our States which seceded. I have a feeling that if we had not been guests of honor we would have heard plainer talk. It is exasperating to contemplate politicians who would advance their ambitions at the cost of ruining a century-long friendship for the sake of a race which cannot agree on what it wants.

Marks of 1917 Disaster.

All of us read about the explosion in Halifax harbor of a vessel load of munitions in 1917, killing over a thousand persons, injuring many more thousands and making thousands of families homeless, but there was so much excitement in those days that we did not realize the extent of the calamity. The debris has been pretty well cleared away, but there exist as monuments of the disaster scores of blocks of temporary houses constructed flimsily and hastily which are filled by people whose new homes have not yet been built. Persons who think they have bad luck and a hard lot should go to Halifax, as should others who think no work is left for the Red Cross. However, Halifax is undaunted and is rebuilding at a rapid rate. They tell wonderful stories of the effects of the explosion. There is to be seen a ship's gun which was blown twelve miles into the country. A man standing on a pile of lumber was carried, with his support, three miles and alighted uninjured. One man had put in his cellar a furnace the style of which was disapproved by his wife. They quarreled bitterly and she went to a neighbor's while he went down and started the furnace. When the explosion came she saw the side of their house blow out and strike another dwelling and had a real good time telling her spouse what she thought of him before she found that the furnace was not at fault. There is no cloud of trouble so black that it has no silver lining of humor.

The business men of Halifax differ from ours in their methods. They are neither "live wires" or "hustlers." They get down to the office at 9:30 or 10:00 a. m., read the paper leisurely, attend to business, take an hour or two off for lunch, and are on the golf links by 4 p. m. Somehow, they prosper exceedingly. An American with "pep" could go to Halifax and make it lively for those lads, but after he had acquired nervous prostration they would doubtless be getting richer both in money and in assurances of a long and healthy life. I got all this from an important business man of the town.

AT THE THEATERS.

"The Cup of Fury," which scored a hit at Keeney's yesterday, is to be repeated again tonight. The story first appeared as a novel and created a sensation, giving rise to a long and heated discussion in the New York daily press. Also programmed is the Gaumont news weekly, Pathe Review, Literary Digest and Mutt and Jeff cartoon comics. Tomorrow, Elaine Hammerstein in "Greater than Fame."

"Friday, the 13th," at the Auditorium tonight, with Robert Warwick starring, is a screen drama of high finance in Wall street, showing how the lambs are sheared. It is a tense, interesting story of a man's fight against heavy odds. Also featured "Fatty" Arbuckle in an excellent comedy and the latest International News weekly. Tomorrow Enid Bennett in "Stepping Out" and William S. Hart in "The Gentleman from Blue Gulch."

Be Boss of Your Heater

You control a Boynton Square Pot Boiler or Furnace. You needn't coax it, for Square Pots are never balky.

A few minutes in morning and again at night does the trick, unless the cold is unusually severe. Then give one extra stoking.

The square firepot—a patented feature—is built like a locomotive firebox. Your fire is all live coal, without ash or clinker. Gratebars operate with an even motion under the whole firebed.

Temperature is steady, neither too low nor unbearably hot. Anytime you need more heat quickly, you have a clean bed of coals and perfect draft.

Any dealer will tell you the whole story. Or write us today.

NOMINATIONS START TODAY

By Telegraph to The Freeman:

San Francisco, June 30.—Neck and neck the three principal contenders for the Democratic nomination—Governor James M. Cox, Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer and William Gibbs McAdoo—were racing for first ballot honors today as the nomination speech makers got their morning shave and prepared for the oratorical fireworks, marking the beginning of the convention's final stage.

Each of these three candidates will poll in the neighborhood of 300, according to an estimate based upon figures obtained from the supporters of the candidates themselves and checked against data secured from the uninstructed delegations

Palmer's supporters are claiming as high as 375 votes on the first ballot, but the more conservative element among them today declared they could rely on 320.

Governor Cox's rooters claimed, just before the nominations were scheduled to begin, 300 votes on the first roll call, though some Coxites admitted they expected to poll somewhat under 300 at the outset, but would climb.

McAdoo's support is hardest of all to weigh. It is scattered and unorganized and estimates vary widely. One of the shrewdest politicians of the southwest today claimed for McAdoo 368 votes on the first ballot as against 253 for Cox and 198 for Palmer.

One of McAdoo's staunchest supporters told the International News Service early today, however, following a conference of leaders, that he felt certain of 276 votes on the initial ballot for the former secretary of the treasury, with more than this number for both Cox and Palmer.

Rumors of a second communication from McAdoo to his friends here again urging them to desist and forbidding the use of his name in the convention were abroad early today, but were quickly spiked by those in touch with the situation.

Twelve states here are instructed with a total of 336 votes in the convention. The uninstructed states and territories number 41, with a total vote of 756. Cox has only two states instructed for him, his own—Ohio—and Kentucky, while Palmer has the same number for him—Pennsylvania, his home state, and Georgia.

With such a lot of unbound delegates to deal with, even the sharpest of the politicians here admit that anything can happen and the nomination is far from being cinched by anybody.

CARUSO THREAT TO LEAVE U. S.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 30.—Enrico Caruso, who has just arrived from Havana, does not believe that Hampton, Long Island, nor in the robbery of $450,000 worth of jewels from his summer home at East Hampton, Long Island, nor in the bomb explosion in the theater of the Cuban capital, where he was filling an operatic engagement.

"I have not received any black hand letters in recent years nor threatening letters of any kind," said the famous tenor today. "The man isn't born yet who wants to kill me. The jewel robbery is in the hands of the police. I can not talk of that. As to the bomb explosion at Havana, I believe that was caused by persons who had a grudge against the owner of the theater."

Caruso said he planned to fill an engagement at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York next winter.

"If I am treated well I shall remain in this country: otherwise I shall return to my family in Italy," said he.

MINOR DAMAGE BY SEVERE STORM

Hurricane and Deluge Brewed in Shawangunks Was Awe-Inspiring, But Trees and Wires Were Chief Sufferers—Two Thrown Out of Lehr's Wagon as Horse Ran Amuck on Broadway.

Tuesday's storm was the worst that has visited Ulster county in many years. It began shortly after four o'clock and came with great suddenness. Within a few minutes, the sky was darkened with clouds of great density and in many business places it was necessary to turn on artificial light. Where the artificial light was furnished by electricity, the lights soon went out as the wires were struck by lightning

About the time that the sky became dark, a strong wind developed which assumed proportions of a hurricane and in many sections of the county blew down large trees. South of the village of Saugerties, the wind was so violent that three trees were blown across the state highway and blocked traffic All along the Saugerties road, between Kingston and Saugerties, large branches of trees were blown down, and along the Flatbush road many branches had to be removed before automobiles could proceed

In Kingston and for some distance around the city, trees were bent almost double by the force of the wind, and many of them were snapped off. The yard of the Old Senate House was strewn with large branches of the big trees which grace the property.

The storm, or the succession of storms, for there appeared to be three of them, formed in the Shawangunk Mountains, in the vicinity of Lake Mohonk, and as they emerged from the mountains and spread out over the Rondout valley, they made an awesome appearance. The lightning which flashed from the sky was of the forked variety, and as flash succeeded flash with not more than two or three seconds' intermission, each flash being accompanied by loud peals of thunder, the storm had a most terrifying effect, particularly in the country districts.

The street force was kept busy removing the many trees and branches which were blown down about the city Although there were a number of very large trees blown down and in some places wires were broken, there was no one reported injured.

One of the large trees in front of the residence of Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck on the corner of Clinton avenue and Maiden Lane, was blown down, falling across Maiden Lane and striking the residence of M. J. Michael across the street. Some of the larger branches rested on the roof of Prof. Michael's house, breaking off a part of the cornice and damaging the roof

On Broadway near the corner of Cornell street, another large tree was blown down. All over the city branches were torn off trees, keeping linemen busy clearing wires and the street force busy clearing up the streets.

To the south of Kingston the storm was equally severe, the storm seeming to center over the Shawangunk mountains and then passing off to the east.

In spite of the storm, the temperature did not drop to a low point, and the air was more oppressive after the storm than before and throughout the evening and night there were frequent showers of a less severe nature than that of the afternoon.

During the height of the storm a horse attached to a delivery wagon of William Lehr, the Broadway grocer, became frightened by a blinding flash of lightning and dashed up Broadway. George Messen of Cedar street, the driver, and David Weisberger, were thrown out, but were not seriously injured. They were picked up by Mrs Charles McBride and taken to the office of Dr. Hillis on Maiden Lane. The horse, after running into a motorcycle and bicycle which stood along the curb on Broadway near Downs street, continued up Broadway to Clinton avenue where the horse slipped on the wet pavement and fell. The wagon was a wreck, pieces being scattered all along Broadway from Downs street to Albany avenue.

A SHORT LIVED MEXICAN REVOLT

General Osuna Rises Against Government in Tamaulipas but Gomez's Troops Defeat His Forces.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Vera Cruz, June 30.—A new revolution has broken out in Mexico, according to information received here today. Troops under General Carlos Osuna, that were stationed near Ciuada, in the state of Tamaulipas, are leading the uprising. OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Serviceable Two Piece Morning Garment.

Pattern 3209 is here portrayed. It is cut in seven sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust measure. A medium size will require 7½ yards of 27-inch material.

This would be attractive in cotton crepe with binding of mercerized braid or "wash" ribbon. It is also nice for percale, lawn, figured voile, challie, albatross, silk and crepe de chine. The width of the skirt at its lower edge is two yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or 1c and 2c stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Members of Ulster County Bar Endorse Surrogate Walter N. Gill

The undersigned, members of the Ulster County Bar, believe that the public interests will be most substantially subserved by the renomination and reelection of the present surrogate, Honorable Walter N. Gill.

During his administration, Surrogate Gill has displayed not only profound legal learning, especially in the department of testamentary law, but also a remarkable degree of common sense in the application of his knowledge to the question in hand.

He has, in addition to this, shown untiring patience in the hearing, and discriminating care and industry in the examination and decision of matters before him.

During his administration, he has been in attendance for the personal transaction of business every day in the week, and not merely on two court days—a practice which has been wonderfully helpful to suitors and attorneys. He has, moreover, found time to perform valuable and needed services, forming no part of his actual official duty, to the great saving of the money of the taxpayers of this county.

In short, it is difficult to see how any public officer could have been more diligent, capable, or efficient.

Above all, his official action has been, at all times, characterized by absolute and unquestioned integrity.

Of late, the best thought has tended to exclude partisan considerations in the selection of judges, and we believe this to be the very case where this principle should be applied. In view of the great qualifications of the present surrogate, it would be a public detriment if a continuance of services so valuable were not availed of.

Supervisors Tell Legislative Committee What Is Needed In Ulster County—Sawkill Road Again Listed—County Advised To Raise $50,000 Yearly and Secure Like Amount From State.

The Joint State Legislative Committee on highways appointed at the last session met at the supervisors' room at the court house Tuesday afternoon with the board of supervisors, to confer on matters pertaining to the highway system in Ulster county. The members of the joint committee are on a tour of the state meeting with the supervisors of the counties, the members being Senators Charles J. Hewitt of Cayuga, John Knight, James J. Walker and Assemblymen George F. Wheelock of Livingston; Joseph A. McGinnies of Chautauqua; Bert Lard, Warren S. Thayer and Andrew S. Beasley. C. G. Hiscock of Auburn, clerk of the committee was also present as was J. C. Finch, the engineer of the committee.

County Attorney John W. Eckert, Clerk Henry R. DeWitt, County Superintendent of Highways J. F. Loughran, Chairman John Saxe, Senator Walton, Philip Elting, and Supervisors Brink, Charlton, Avery, Van Aken, Weideman, Miller, Young, Bogart, Harcourt, Quimby, Schoonmaker, Sagendorf, Fratsher, McMillin, Shaw, and Wilklow were present.

The conference opened about 3 o'clock Senator Hewitt, chairman of the legislative committee, presiding. He stated tha the purpose of the committee was to get suggestions from the various legislative bodies of the counties of the state as to the most beneficial or necessary state and county highways, suggestions as to new highways desired and as to connecting links; also as to what proposed highways might be eliminated, and as to changes in routes that might be made. That the committee desires to have a comprehensive map made to present to the legislature so that it might be known as what mileage it would be feasible and practicable to construct. He said that the county would fare better under the county system which other counties have adopted and are working under, whereby the county if it raised fifty thousand dollars a year would receive a like amount from the state. He hinted that within five years the state, in his opinion, woud take care of all maintenance.

Maps were then spread out on the desk and Engineer Finch of the committee and County Highway Superintendent Loughran then marked on the maps in outline the highways wanted and such connecting links and changes the supervisors suggested, which will be embodied in the comprehensive map which Engineer Finch will draw for the committee to present. While the suggestions were being noted the members of the joint legislative committee left for Catskill where they were to meet the supervisors of Greene county.

Among the suggestions made for necessary routes for county highways were the following, which Engineer Finch of the legislative committee noted on the tentative maps to be embodied in the comprehensive map which he will prepare for submission to the state legislature for adoption next winter:

From Kingston highway through Sawkill to Zena in the town of Woodstock to the boulevard at West Hurley being the Sawkill road improvement so long desired.

Starting at Denton's Corners in the town of Gardiner thence over the Shawangunk mountains near Minnewaska, connecting on the Ellenville-Kingston road at Kerhonkson. This proposed highway runs between Lake Mohonk and Lake Minnewaska section and also through part of the state forest reserve lands.

Starting at Wallkill running southerly to Walden.

The proposed county highways improvement that have been acted upon by the board of supervisors and the state highway department, being the highway between New Paltz and Highland and the highway running from Saugerties through Quarryville to Palenville will remain.

A number of other suggestions were noted by the committee.

which will declare the futility of passing resolutions in favor of the Irish republic or even recognizing the republic, but the importance of turning the question over to the league of nations is favored. It is not clear at this time what form this plank will take.

Mexico.

The sentiment of the committee is for a plank which will withhold recognition from any government of Mexico that does not comply with such responsibilities as maintenance of effective border patrol, honest government, enactment of laws fit to protect foreign investments and legitimate enterprises, fair taxation of foreigners and payment of international obligations.

Soldiers' Bonus.

It is doubtful if the plank will favor the flat payment of soldiers' bonuses, but will provide for proper assistance for maimed, crippled or sick soldiers as a government duty through an efficient board. The tentative draft denies that able-bodied men who fought for America expect financial rewards but insists that a scheme for putting veterans in possession of land for agricultural purposes, when desired, should be effected without delay.

The entire platform, it is reported, will make about five thousand or six thousand words, if the tentative subcommittee draft is accepted and indeed reaches the committee on resolutions and platform in about the same form that it was in this morning.

SCHMIDTKONZ PUPILS' CONCERT

The school hall of the Spring Street German Lutheran Church was filled with the parents and friends of the pupils of Miss Sophie Schmidtknoz at the piano concert given Tuesday evening. The hall was beautifully decorated with flowers of the season. The elaborate program, selected from the works of Spaulding, Engelmann, Lindsay, Durand, Smith, Schubert, Lack, etc., was presented by the junior and advanced members of the class. TO TRY TIGAR BEFORE JURY

The trial of F. A. Tigar, on a charge of assaulting and blacking both the eyes of Abram Gollop was adjourned this morning in police court until the evening of July 7, when Judge W. D. Brinnier, Jr., who appeared for Tigar, stated that his client desired a jury trial.

Gollop was not represented in court by an attorney, but stated that he would obtain one if the case was to be tried before a jury, and decided to retain Robert Howard to look after his interests.

There was no question from Gollop's appearance that some one had blacked both his eyes. The alleged assault occurred Saturday night under the Rhinebeck ferry shed on Ferry street.

It is expected that the trial will develop some interesting facts.

Tigar An Honest Man.

F. A. Tigar, who runs a taxi service at the Rhinebeck ferry, on Tuesday found a large sum of money in the rear seat of his car which had been dropped by a passenger. He drove back to where he had discharged his fare and returned her the money.

HARD KNOCKS FOR KNOCKERS' CLUB

Secretary Hudson Hands Out Some Of Their Own Medicine To Those Who Do Nothing But Shirk And Discourage Others From Working.

In a brief but forceful address to the Rotary Club members at their weekly luncheon today Secretary Hudson of the Chamber of Commerce made a few very timely remarks on the subject of opportunity and the danger of neglecting an opportunity because of lack of broad business vision. Making no secret of the fact that there were reasons at this time for feeling serious concern for the future of Kingston, Mr. Hudson reviewed recent progress and added that he hoped to be able to add the new factory of L. Barth & Son to the list of new benefits to the city, but his ability to do so would depend on whether or not Kingston stood behind its Chamber of Commerce in the matter and did so within the next 24 hours.

Barth & Son ask no bonus or gift; merely the loan of $25,000 at six per cent and unless the promise of the Chamber of Commerce is made good, what confidence can anyone have in it or in Kingston in the future? Kingston has been a female labor town. Here is the opportunity to bring it to proper balance, to increase the amount of assessed property, to help fill in the space that is big enough for a city of 75,000, distribute more widely the burden of caring for 75 miles of streets.

It is time for the workers for Kingston to challenge criticism, as well as to continue work. There are three classes of citizens: workers, indifferent and knockers. To the last class belongs the man who instead of helping, offers to bet $1,000 that Barth will never locate here.

Mr. Hudson closed with an appeal to those who were working for the upbuilding of the city to continue working and to induce others to work.

Boice Matinee Largely Attended.

There was a large attendance this afternoon at the exhibition of aesthetic and interpretive dancing given by the pupils of Miss Delta Boice and Miss Boice herself, at the Kingston Opera House. So charming were all the numbers that many of those present this afternoon expressed themselves as intending to go again this evening to see the graceful, poetic and beautiful dances.

GYESTICUTUS FOOLED STUDENTS

The item in The Freeman of Saturday entitled "Who ever saw a Gyesticutus," recalls to the memory of an old Kingstonian the visit of Dan Rice's circus to this town in July, 1856. The tent was pitched on what afterwards was known as the camp ground, near Jacob's Valley. Dan was the great circus man of his day. He advertised the Gyesticutus, the Chinchantankarora, the Jibeonasy and the Whangdoodle all of which he claimed had been found in Australia, then a comparatively unknown continent. They were represented as new varieties of antipodal animals.

Rice had secured a tattooed Marquesan of gigantic stature, whom he clothed with skins and furs, taught to walk on all fours, with a big staff, and half bent, and to utter a wonderful variety of strange and ear piercing howls. This fellow played the part of the Gyesticutus, Chinchantankarora, Jibeonasy and the Whangdoodle to the great delight of all the small boys who were fortunate enough to see the show.

One of the humors of the situation was that the class in natural history at the Kingston Academy insisted that all the books upon natural history in the academy library were worthless because they contained no account of these wonderful Australian beasts of prey.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Mower entertained Sunday at their home in Malden-on-the-Hudson in honor of Arthur Short.

Miss Mary VanWagonen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John K. VanWagonen of Catskill, celebrated her eight birthday last Friday afternoon on the front lawn of the Catskill Mountain House. The function took the form of a costume party, the members of which filed through the front door of the house in processional order and took their seats around an artistically decorated table on which there was a wonderful birthday cake and other dainties. Little Miss Mary was attired as Bo-peep and sat, crook in hand, on a raised dais, gazing smilingly on all present. Her mother was charming in her impersonation of Lady Teazel of Gainsborough fame. The gentlemen of the party, not to be outdone, also appeared in character. Mr. Van Wagonen impersonated a country squire with carefully trimmed beard and pointed mustache. Gilbert deB. Melhiush, assistant at the house, occasioned much merriment as Merry War-Widow in a long flowing black chiffon head veil and gay colored gown embellished with Oriental jewels. Jack Worden, private secretary, was ludicrous and laughable in his make-up of a suffrage leader. Little Miss Mary is the grandaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil B. VanWagonen of this city.

The best man was Wesley Mickle, brother of the groom. Following the ceremony the young couple left for New York city and vicinity. On their return they will make their future home in Athens where they are very popular and where the groom is employed.

Lansing Simmons of Poughkeepsie and Miss Sadie Finley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Finley of No. 9 O'Neil street, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at the Holy Cross Church by the Rev. Father Mabry. The bride presented a charming picture gowned in dark blue satin with hat to match and carried a bouquet of bride's roses She was attended by her sister, Miss Mary Finley, who was also gowned in dark blue satin with hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The best man was Arthur Simmons, a brother of the groom. As the bridal party entered the church the wedding march was payed by Mr. Kidd, the organist of the church. The bride received many pretty and useful gifts of cut glass, silver and linen from her many friends, after which a buffet lunch was served at the home of the bride. After receiving the congratulations of their many friends the couple left amid a shower of rice and confetti on the 6:35 West Shore train for Poughkeepsie where a newly furnished home awaits them. Both the bride and groom take with them the best wishes of a host of friends for a long and happy wedded life.

Zucca-Fraleigh.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fraleigh, No. 104 Main street, was the scene of a quiet home wedding this afternoon at 2 o'clock when their eldest daughter, Kathryn D. Fraleigh, and Paul A. Zucca of Poughkeepsie, were united in marriage by the Rev. Henry Smith, secretary of the Ulster County Bible Society. The bride was attired in a white georgette crepe dress with pearl trimmings, white tulle veil with orange blossoms which were worn by her mother at the time of her marriage. The traveling suit was of navy blue tricotine with blue taffeta hat. The groom was clothed in the conventional black. Daniel Meede of Poughkeepsie was best man and Miss Angie Zucca, sister of the groom, bridesmaid. Her costume was of pink organdie with pink georgette crepe hat. The music was by George Rutherford and Richard Northrup. Miss Fraleigh is one of Kingston's most respected young ladies and for several years has been the successful business manager of the millinery establishment of the Misses Keefe and Fawcett on Wall street. Mr. Zucca is owner of the "Zucca men's hat store" in Poughkeepsie, and also a prominent musician, being manager of the Zucca orchestra. The gifts were numerous and valuable. After an extended wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Zucca will reside in Kingston.

Exercise Intelligently.

"[illegible] younger as you grow older by cultivating a love of good, healthful, outdoor sport," is sound advice. Walking, riding, rowing, playing golf, tennis or croquet or any other mild form of exercise in the open air keeps the muscles supple and prevents the joints from stiffening. Fills the lungs with life-giving oxygen and keeps the blood from becoming sluggish or the liver torpid. In short, it is exercise and right thinking that keep the body "in tune and up to concert pitch."—Orison Swett Marden in Chicago Daily News.

LETTER PRAISES LANSING'S SERVICE

Judge Clearwater Obliged To Decline To Be Spokesman at Reception For Robert Lansing at Watertown.

The members of the bar of the northern counties of the state gave to the Hon. Robert Lansing, late secretary of state of the United States, who was summarily dismissed from that position by President Wilson, a magnificent reception and banquet at his home city of Watertown last Friday. They invited Judge Clearwater to deliver the address on behalf of the American Bar. To his regret he was unable to do this, but sent the following letter which was read at the dinner, and has been extensively published by the newspapers in that part of New York:

"Dear Kellogg:

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of the 15th instant, and to express my profound regret that an imperative engagement here on the 24th of June prevents my acceptance of your cordial invitation to attend the homecoming reception and banquet to Robert Lansing. Alas! I belong to the submerged classes, and the further I advance along the corridor, the greater seems the tidal wave of submersion.

There are few men to whome I would more gladly pay a tribute of admiration that to Robert Lansing, for I regard him as a man of the highest personal character, cherishing the loftiest and noblest ideals of public duty, a diplomat of great distinction and wisdom, and one who under most trying and embarrassing conditions has preserved a dignity, equipoise and serenity of which few men are capable, and fewer still willing to call to their aid. He performed a great service to the American people, and to the world, and it is one of the lamentable tragedies of American political history that he should have been so shabbily and disgracefully treated. Kindly convey to him and to the members of your bar my warmest regards, and the expression of my sorrow at being unable to be with them upon this important and significant occasion.

With many kind regards, I am as ever,

Very sincerely yours.
A. T. CLEARWATER.

To:
Hon. Virgil K Kellogg,
Chairman, etc.,
Watertown,
New York."

Collars have been retailing for 30 cents apiece during the past eighteen months. Two years ago they sold two for a quarter. Lower prices for linen and other materials is given as the reason for the reduction.

WILSONIANS IN FULL CONTROL

Orators Line Up For "Day of the Big Wind" at Convention Which Resumes at 3 p. m. New York State Time and Continues With Nominating Speeches Until Delegates Tire —Smooth Sailing For Platform and McAdoo if Bryan Can Be Muzzled.

By Telegraph to The Freeman:

Washington, June 30.—With the lieutenants of the administration sitting firmly in the saddle, a Wilsonian platform in the making and the president's son-in-law the likeliest looking contender for the nomination, the Democratic national convention turned to oratory today to fill in the time until the party managers clear away the work incident to nominating.

Today's session could facetiously be termed "the day of the big wind." The session will begin at 11 a. m. (2 p. m. eastern standard time) with oratory and continue with oratory as long as the delegates can endure it. The length of the session depends upon endurance of the delegates. The party managers here to get at least the majority of the nominating speeches out of the way today, leaving nothing for the remainder of the week, but the adoption of the platform and balloting which will develop the nominee.

While the platform carpenters wrestled with the disputed planks, it became more and more clear that the forces of the administration were in complete control of the situation. The platform sub-committee of nine men, which has the making of the temporary platform, is almost a solid administration body. William Jennings Bryan, the party's three time nominee for president, and Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall, both of whom were considered opponents of the White House on certain matters, couldn't even get places on it, despite their magnitude in Democratic affairs.

Meanwhile the McAdoo "boom" was moving majestically along, with little ostentatious direction yet backed by most of the president's friends and cabinet officers who are running things in San Francisco for him. The White House may be silent on question of candidates, but the cabinet officers, who meet there weekly, are not. They are plugging for William Gibbs McAdoo.

Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer and Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio, continue to be the Wood and Lowden of the Democratic convention. Their strength so far as can be observed, has not increased notably during the week. The general opinion in San Francisco is that they will make their respective races in the first few ballots and then quietly fade.

It is likely that the balloting stage can not be reached before late tomorrow or Friday, if then. The platform committee is not expected to bring in a report until late today. If William Jennings Bryan and some of the other White House foes can be muzzled to prevent a floor fight against its adoption, it will be speedily ratified, a nominee developed and everybody can go home.

If the platform, however, is brought in in such shape that Bryan and others can not swallow it whole, then a floor fight undoubtedly will develop, delaying the whole thing and put off the picking of a candidate until Saturday.

It was the concensus of opinion here today that, come what will, the convention can be ended by Saturday night.

A communication from the White House—an open communication for the press, the delegates, etc.—is not unexpected by many in San Francisco some time during the week. There was considerable speculation today as to what the nature of such a communication might be. Whether it comes or not, many delegates here expect it.

There were persistent reports about the lobbies and gathering places today that a little band of "irreconcilables" had gotten together in sufficient numbers to block a McAdoo nomination. It will take, however, some 367 votes to stop a nomination and McAdoo's friends are confident that this number could not get banded together and hold. They prophesy that after Palmer and Cox kill each other off in the early ballots, with McAdoo's strength showing a steady increase, the rush for the "bandwagon" will be of such proportions as to sweep the president's son-in-law over with a rush.

"Compromise candidates" in the event of such an unlooked for contingency as a deadlock developing are on every hand. Each campaign manager is urging the claims of his candidate as the "ideal compromise candidate."

The one most generally heard, however, is Vice President Thomas Riley Marshall of Indiana. His strongest claim, his friends set forth, is that he has no enemies in the party, so there is no one irreconcilably opposed to the little gray haired Hoosier. Few men are so widely known throughout the rank and file of the party and few so universally liked.

Another man prominently mentioned as "a likely compromise candidate" is Ambassador John W. Davis of West Virginia. Like Marshall, he has no enemies in the party, but unlike the Indianan, he has little acquaintance with the rank and file of the party. Ambassador Davis, however, is understood to be entirely acceptable to the administration.

The need for a compromise candidate, however, is not acute—yet. To date the administration has not even [illegible] in the [illegible] majority that there are [illegible] in San Francisco today who believe that if the White House decides [illegible] McAdoo it will experience no great difficulty in so doing.

ROBERTSON OR MOAKLEY COACH

By Telegraph to The Freeman:

New York, June 30.—The executive branch of the American Olympic Commission will meet here July 6 to select a coach for the American team of track and field athletes who will represent this country at Antwerp, it was announced today.

Many prominent athletic coaches, it is reported, are to be considered before a final selection is made. Two leading candidates for the position are Jack Moakley, the veteran Cornell athletic mentor, and Lawson Robertson, coach of the champion Pennsylvania University team.

The commission may make a departure from the custom of former years by appointing two coaches for this year's team, one to handle the track athletes and the other to coach the men who will compete in the field events.

They are enthusiastic about their organization and stand with great loyalty behind their leaders in their endeavors to build up and make it a success. An entertainment was given recently in Grange Hall for which the members sold 130 tickets. A short time ago the organization conceived the idea that the Scouts should select a date and hold a reunion and field day in which everybody far and near could participate, and to that end they have been devoting all their energies. The matter was brought to the attention of the baseball club and the two organizations have united their efforts and perfected a plan for the reunion and field day celebration which will take place on Saturday, July 3. The program will consist of the following attractions: At 2 p. m., sports by amateurs: 100 yard dash, broad jump, bag race, greased pole, with another contest to be announced on the ground. At 3 p. m., a baseball game. In the evening from 8 to 12 o'clock, concert by the Marlborough orchestra. At 9 p. m. an extra fine vocal and instrumental program with other specialties will be presented. A man of mystery will be within easy reach to tell the future of inquiring persons. Refreshment booths will be on the grounds, where ice cream, hot dog and other supplies may be obtained. Reserve the date and remember the place, Clintondale, Saturday afternoon and evening, July 3.
